Welcome to the orange wine in the contest !

An orange wine is a white wine with maceration

Here is the definition by OIV-ECO 647-2020 :

«White wine resulting from the alcoholic fermentation of a must in prolonged contact with grape marc, including the skins, the pulp, the pips and possibly the stems.»

REQUIREMENTS :

- a) The production is made exclusively from varieties of white grapes ;
- b) the maceration is carried out in contact with grape marc ;
- c) the minimum duration of the maceration phase is one month ;
- d) «white wine with maceration» can be characterised by an orange-amber colour and tannic taste».

As a true observer of wine trends, and at the request of certain winegrowers proud to present their new products, the Mondial is innovating and also opens the competition to orange wines from the 5 continents. Indeed, many estates have embarked on this adventure and winelovers are more and more seduced by this orange variation. It is therefore right that winegrowers can have their products seriously evaluated and that consumers can also find their way around.

The Union de la Sommellerie Française

The Union de la Sommellerie Française*, is well represented at Le Mondial des Vins Blancs.

This association, which aims to promote, support, develop, improve and protect the Sommelier profession and activity, brings an additional guarantee of the tasters' competences and grants a valued credibility to the winners.

Strasbourg Evénements welcomes many representatives of the UDSF, which confirms the Unions interest towards le Mondial des Vins Blancs.

Serge DUBS, 1989 World's Best Sommelier and also Vice President of the A.S.I. (association de la sommellerie internationale) will take part in the tastings as member of the jury. For this entire career, he was rewarded in march 2021, the 1st Gérard Basset Prize. He is undoubtedly the ambassador of the Alsatian vineyards.

Other members from the steering committee of the Association of Alsatian Sommeliers will also judge the samples, which shows the increasing interest of the official wine authorities in the Mondial des Vins Blancs Strasbourg.

It should be noted that, each year, the wine stewards supervised by their teacher Antoine WOERLÉ, are students "course sommellerie" of the Lycee Hôtelier Alexandre Dumas of Illkirch, near Strasbourg.

The «Appetizer» wine

In addition to the Presidency of the jury table, Serge Dubs has never failed in the ceremonial wine appetizer. It is always a solemn and very important moment. Serge Dubs comments on the wine, this same wine which allows the calibration process on the one hand and the launch of the competition on the other.

*The Union de la Sommellerie Française currently has more than 1,300 members and incorporates 21 regional associations, thanks to which it organises tastings and seminars, while also taking part in training workshops for young wine waiters. At its major conferences, which bring together a considerable part of its membership, the UDSF awards «golden grapes» to the best master.

L'Union des Œnologues de France

The Enologists syndicate

Founded in 1959 (4 years after the DNO degree) the Union des Oenologues de France gathers all wine professionals graduated with the DNO. 1500 Enologists have joined the Union to contribute to the recognition and the protection of their job. Their opinions regarding wine regulations and sector are then reported to the national and international wine and vine organizations.

Thanks to a 7 agencies organization, the Union is directly connected with its members and the daily operations (the agencies are located in Alsace, Bordeaux Sud-Ouest, Bourgogne Centre Est, Champagne, Languedoc-Roussillon, Provence-Corse-Vallée du Rhône and Val de Loire). Each Region manages its own activities (wine contests, tastings), organizes meetings (technical conferences) is connected with the regional offices and is in charge of the organization of the Congrès national des Œnologues each year in May.

The AIVA, The International Academy of Wines in Alsace

The International Academy of Wines in Alsace teaches, develops and deepens all the wine professions: Viticulture, Winemaking, Sommellerie, Management, Marketing, Communication, Management and Commercialization. AIVA proposes and ensures the adequacy between the teaching delivered and the professional skills required. AIVA collaborates with speakers appreciated for their professionalism in the wine sectors, sales, communication, export, oenotourism and others.

AIVA adapts to a very diverse audience and offers both very short training courses on request, as well as pathways to university degrees.

The AIVA WSET students, as observers, are invited to taste the competing white wines. Le CIVA

#drinkalsace

The CIVA gathers more than 850 wine producers (wineries, cooperative cellars, wine merchants) in Alsace.

In order to promote Alsatian wines and to position them as the reference of white in the world, the CIVA decided to strengthen the existing Concours. That is why the CIVA has been closely working with its long time partner Strasbourg Evénements regarding a new formula of the Mondial des Vins Blancs Strasbourg.

That new proposal aims to highlight dry wines, to strengthen mediatisation and to position Alsace as the place to be regarding white wines of the world.

Moreover, the Alsatian winners of special prizes such as the dry wine trophies, Vinofed Prize and Grand Jury Prize are highlighted during a public poster campaign.

The ANEV is the national association of elected representatives of the vine and wine.

The National Association of Elected Vine and Wine was born on June 15, 1999 at the initiative of some twenty parliamentarians from wine constituencies across France.

Its creation was a response to the observation made by Michel Grégoire, former agricultural technician and Member of Parliament for Drôme, who deplored the absence of a network of elected representatives to represent the vine and wine territories, who nevertheless share so many concerns and commonalities.

Inspired by other associations of elected officials serving the territories, these elected officials then decided to found ANEV to constitute the network of elected representatives of wine, transcending all political and geographic divisions.

ANEV now has several hundred members, including a large majority of wine-growing municipalities and intermunicipal bodies, as well as around one hundred parliamentarians from regions and departments.

Vincent LEGLANTIER, 2021 jury member General Secretary of the ANEV

ANEV's missions aim to meet 4 main objectives:

- Express and represent the general interests of wine-growing areas;
- Promote consultation, exchange and dialogue between elected representatives of wine;
- Inform the member communities of the policies implemented by the public authorities;
- And above all, promote the dynamism of viticulture and its terroirs.

In order to best meet these objectives, ANEV has embarked on a development strategy aimed at establishing partnerships with important events for viticulture, in order to improve its presence across the territories.

This is why, in this year 2021, ANEV and the Mondial des Vins Blancs Strasbourg have decided to set up a «win-win» partnership. This should allow ANEV to improve its anchoring in the regions producing white wines, in particular in Alsace, while offering the Mondial des Vins blancs Strasbourg new visibility among elected members of ANEV, and all those interested in its activity.

Moreover, this renewed partnership also allows ANEV to pursue its mission of promoting the dynamism and vitality of viticulture, which can only be better symbolized by the quality of the productions rewarded at the Mondial des Vins Blancs Strasbourg.

The Competition

How it works

Due to the COVID pandemic, the first rule to be followed is the health protocol. The health standards will be applied according to current government guidelines. Then, regarding the tasting itself, the very strict tasting rules require the jurors to be unfailingly impartial in their judgement.

The tasters will be required not only to taste but also to describe and comment on the wines according to the following criteria :

- The visual aspect
- The olfactive aspect
- The impression on the palate
- The overall impression
- The particular uniqueness and character of the product

The whole criteria are then reported and registered through a numerical process thanks to an electronic device.

The Mondial des Vins Blancs Strasbourg welcomes professional tasters (qualified tasters, oenologists, sommeliers; wine growers, journalists etc...), selected throughout the world according to their experience and competences. Most of them are also experts for other international OIV supported competitions.

Each table will be made up from 5 to 7 places.

So, a majority of foreign tasters is secured for each table.

There will be 10 tables. Each jury will taste the grape varieties every day starting at 8.30 am.

The 70 international judges will debate, rate their jury's table regarding about 700 tasted samples and grant them their note.

The rewarded winegrowers will be authorized to affix the seals of the prizes obtained to their bottles.

NEW

The awards will be given to wines obtaining → for a Grand Or a Minimum of 93 points

- for a gold: a Minimum of 89 points

- for a silver: a Minimum of 85 points

Only 30% of the wines can be awarded a medal.

NEL CUORE DELL'ASOLO PROSECCO DOCG IN THE HEART OF ASOLO PROSECCO DOCG

By Annie Martin-Stefanatto

Eighty kilometers from Venice, Asolo Prosecco was born on the hills of the eighteen municipalities that surround the ancient village of Asolo, the city of a hundred horizons, a place of extraordinary beauty, rich in art and history, recognized as one of the most beautiful villages in Italy and was officially nominated for the site of the Unesco World Heritage in 2020 and candidate for the Italian capital of culture 2024.

In this unique landscape, Villa Barbaro is located in Maser, designed by Andrea Palladio and frescoed by Paolo Veronese.

A few kilometers away, in Possagno, there is also the Temple designed by Antonio Canova, born between these hills and the Gipsoteca, where the plaster casts of the works of the greatest exponent of neoclassicism in sculpture. The cultural aspect of this area is as important as the naturalistic aspect, indeed the whole ecosystem is in balance thanks to a marked biodiversity:

The production area of Asolo Prosecco DOCG sparkling wine is located in the province of Treviso in a fascinating hilly environment, characterized by an extraordinary vegetal richness of the foot of Monte Grappa, on the high hills west of Piave, near the Dolomites and Montello and includes the territory of the municipalities of Castelvezzano, Cornuda and Monfumo and part of the territory of the municipalities of Asolo, Caerano S. Marco, Cavaso del Tomba, Crocetta del Montello, Fontanafredda, Gaiola, Giavera del Montello, Maser, Montebelluna, Nervesana della Battaglia, Paderno del Grappa, Pederobba, Possagno, S. Zenone degli Ezzelini and Volpago del Montello. Heroic viticulture is practiced there.

Glera, a grape variety originally from Treviso, is grown on hillside crus. Along with Glera, other historical local varieties such as Bianchetta Trevigiana, Verdiso, La Perera are allowed up to 15% in the production of Prosecco d'Asolo.

The soil in these areas is mostly marl and limestone, giving Asolo Prosecco a minerality, balanced sweetness, delicate body and distinct freshness.

The nose reveals compound and multiple perfumes on several fronts, from exotic fruits to fresh and crisp white fruits with citrus notes, from white flowers to those of herbs and mineral sensations.

Asolo Prosecco obtained DOCG status on June 29, 2009 and was the first denomination, in the large panorama of Prosecco, to also include the Extra Brut type.

The advantage of this sparkling wine is such that it can be served at any time of the day and also at the table with many delicate dishes.

Many thanks to our judge Annie for her contribution and congratulations on her induction as Chevalier du Tastevin on May 14th 2022 !

OBLIO e RINASCITA DI UN ANTICO VITIGNO

Oblivion and rebirth of an ancient grape variety

by Lorenzo Colombo

The Timorasso, grape variety

Piedmont is a traditionally “red” region, just over 60% of the wine produced there is indeed red. White wine, in constant growth until 2017 when it reached 46% of the wine produced in the region, has experienced a decline in recent years which has brought it, in 2020, to 39% of total production.

The most widespread white grape variety is Moscato, followed by Barbera and which, with approximately 10,000 hectares, represents around 22% of the regional vineyard. Cortese, being the fifth most cultivated grape variety in the region, occupies a good position, with 2,600 hectares of vines, followed by the international variety, Chardonnay (about 1,000 hectares of vines) and Arneis with 600 hectares.

But there are other white-grained grape varieties typical of Piedmont, although not very widespread, for example Erbaluce (226 hectares) and La Favorita (180 hectares). But the variety that interests us in this focus is a variety that was literally disappearing but which in recent years has aroused great interest from wine critics and consumers and which is therefore now characterized by exponential growth of its vineyard.

This is Timorasso, a grape variety present in the Tortona region (we are southeast of Alessandria) since the Middle Ages and which in the past has known good times. Much information about this vine can be found in the appendix - edited by Roberto Marro - of the new edition of the popular winegrower's manual, published in 1898 by Luigi Cataldo and reprinted a hundred years later, in 1998 and later in 2020.

Let's leave the oldest story, when the name of the grape variety did not appear in the writings, if not associated with Grignolato and go directly to the most reliable source, which is that of Raimondi S., Torello Marinoni D., Schneider A., 2014 Timorasso. In: Italian Vitis Database, www.vitisdb.it, ISSN 2282-006X which reads as follows:

Timorasso appears in historical texts in the 1830s: Giorgio Galesio mentions it and describes it briefly in the countryside of Novi Ligure in 1834 (Galesio, 1995) while, the previous year, rows of «Temorasi» are planted on the territory of Monleale, in the region of Tortona (Anonymous, 1779-1834).

In the «Ampelography of the province of Alessandria» by Demaria and Leardi (1875) we find the first detailed description of Timorasso which, as the authors affirm, occupied at that time a quarter of the area intended for white grapes in the Tortona region. Its cultivation in this region became even more important at the end of the 19th century when a large and profitable trade began. That of the must wines of Timorasso and Citronino (another local grape variety) still in fermentation (known in dialect as Turbolini or Virginén) which left by wagons from Tortona station to be consumed very young in Lombardy or for finish their fermentation and be refined in Switzerland and Germany (Priora, 1891).

While in the 1960s the production of Timorasso was still 14,000 hl (Dell'Olio et al., 1965), by the end of the 1980s it had been reduced to just over 2 ha (about 200 hl).

The distribution of the vine affected in the past a wider area than today, ranging from Acquese, where it was perhaps called 'Moro', to the west of Oltrepò Pavese. The variety is currently grown almost exclusively in the Tortona region and in the residual vineyards of the Borbera Valley (Alessandria), where it was the main white variety.

The Timorasso grapes give a particular wine, practically devoid of terpene aromas, but very rich in norisoprenoids; thanks to this special composition, a good alcohol content and a constant acidity, these products benefit from aging for a few years, an unusual case among dry white wines.

But let's see the data provided by the Consorzio Tutela Vini Tortonesi on the occasion of the Derethona Due.Zero event, held in Tortona on Friday 1 and Saturday 2 April, in which the Anteprima of the Timorasso.

The data relating to the increase in the area under vines are impressive, if in 1987 there was only half a hectare of Timorasso left and still in 2000 there were only three hectares of vines, the exponential progression which has operated since is something incredible. :

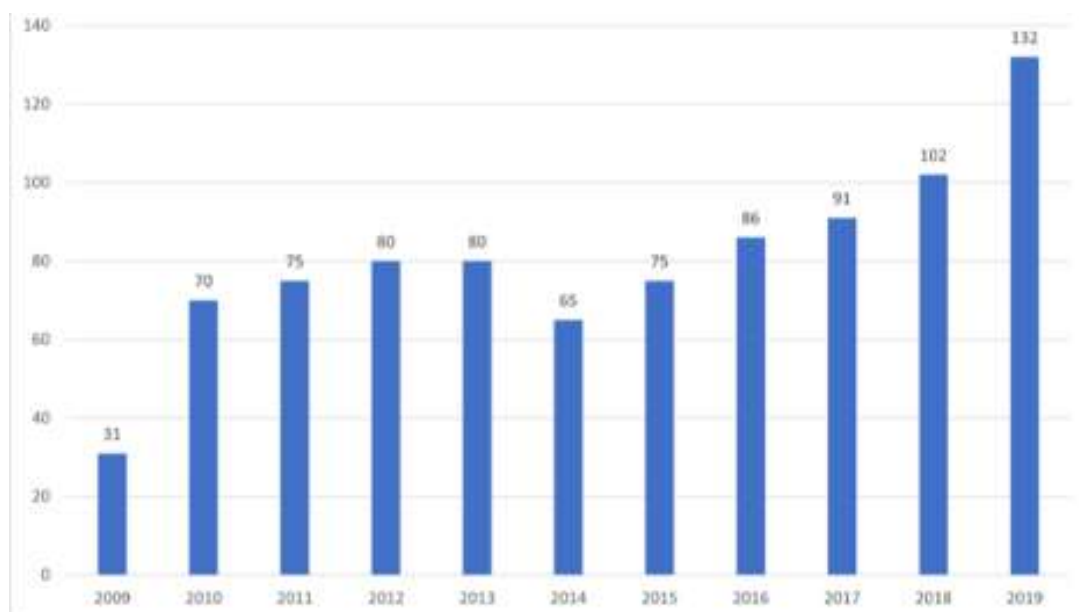

Evolution of the surface of Timorasso in hectares

35

Obviously, the increase in hectares of vines has been accompanied by an equally significant increase in producers who have started to plant this variety, although with a quite different trend:

Evolution of the number of winegrowers of Timorasso

This rebirth is due to Walter Massa, who was the first to believe in the potential of this grape variety, now abandoned by everyone. We were in 1987 and soon two other figures joined Massa, Andrea Mutti and Paolo Poggio. The growing interest in Timorasso wines has also prompted producers from other regions to invest in the Tortona region and now among them there are prestigious names from the Langhe and other famous regions.

Even from a bureaucratic and legislative point of view, Timorasso has a very recent history:

In 1973, the Colli Tortonesi Doc is recognized but the Timorasso grape variety is not mentioned there, in fact the denomination is reserved for Colli Tortonesi Barbera and Colli Tortonesi Cortese.

In 1996 there is a first revision of the production specifications with the inclusion of other types of wine, but there is still no trace of Timorasso which appears for the first time in the later revision of the specifications. loads that took place in 2005 when the Colli Tortonesi typology was admitted and finally Timorasso appeared in 2011, when the Terre di Libarna subzone was recognized and reserved exclusively for our grape variety.

A new revision of the specifications is currently underway with the introduction of the Derthona Sub-zone with much more restricted rules and which provides for three different types of wine:

Piccolo Derthona, Derthona and Derthona Riserva.

It was therefore decided to use the historical name of the town of Tortona to link the name of the wine to that of the territory.

The challenges envisioned for this new sub-domain are quite rigid and include:

- the use of 100% Timorasso grapes
- a yield in the vineyard of a maximum of 75 quintals/hectare
- the exclusion of valley bottoms with different minimum altitudes for each municipality

And, a very interesting feature for energy saving and sustainability: the use of bottles with a maximum weight of 600 gr.

The bottles currently produced are around one million, but the Consortium plans to double this figure by 2030 while, still according to the Consortium's estimates, 350 hectares of vines should be reached, an objective, given the trend of in recent years, certainly within reach.

Lorenzo Colombo

Thanks to Lorenzo Colombo who will be part one more edition of the panel of 70 expert judges.

The AEPI , the Associazione dei Enotecari Professionisti Italiani.

With the collaboration of Francesco BONFIO, President of the AEPI since 2016

Thanks to Francesco BONFIO, President from AEPI since 2016

AEPI - l'Associazione dei Enotecari Professionisti Italiani.

This file dedicated to Italian wine news is also an opportunity to talk about the wine professions and the national organizations and associations that make up the vast wine family.

In 2021, Francesco BONFIO, President of a wine association, did us the honor of joining the Jury of the Mondial des Vins Blancs Strasbourg. It is precisely this association, the AEPI, the variety of its missions, its activities and projects that we wish to highlight.

37

AEPI is the acronym of the Association of “Enotecari” Italian Professionals. It is very useful in the preamble, to be in phase on the terminology which differs from one country to another.

What is exactly an “enotecario” ?

Translating the Italian word Enotecario into other languages is not straightforward as public perceptions and types of services vary from country to country.

Enoteca in Italy is La Cave à Vins in France, Wine shop/merchant in the United Kingdom and Wine Store in the United States. But Enoteca in Italy is also the Wine Bar in France and the Wine Bar in the United Kingdom and the USA. In parallel, Enotecario in Italy is the Cellar in France, the Wine Merchant in the United Kingdom and the Wine Shop/Store Owner in the USA.

Thus the enotecario can be translated by cellarman in French. The wine merchant is a valuable professional figure in the world of wine, whether he operates in France, Italy, New York or Singapore, it is the link between producers and consumers. He can therefore claim a high level of knowledge of the products he selects and sells, of the preferences of the consumers with whom he is in daily contact, and also of the catering and gastronomy sectors..

And what about the AEPI ?

The Association of Italian Professional Wine merchants was founded in 2016 (based on the law of the Italian Republic of January 14, 2013, n.4 having as its object the discipline of autonomous professions), it brings together professionals who deal with “doing enoteca” in the broadest sense of the activity : from the organization of a commercial type to the holding of courses for enthusiasts, from advice on oenological matters to oenological expertise, from the dissemination of wine culture to the management restaurant menus. Enotecario in Italian means all this and much more: wherever the figure of a professional is needed who can make a significant contribution to the proposed activity, thanks to his studies, skills, abilities, knowledge, experience.

Among the most important objectives of the Association we can mention :

- a) The protection, defense, promotion and enhancement of the activity and professional figure of the Enotecario;
- b) Issuance of the certification of the quality and professional qualification of the services rendered by the members to the citizens;
- c) Supervision and monitoring of the compulsory continuing professional training of members;
- d) Compliance with the code of ethics that members signed at the time of registration.

Among the activities carried out annually by the AEPI we can mention:

- a) The organization and implementation of seminars, conferences, round tables useful for the acquisition by the associates of Professional Training Credits for the purposes of compulsory continuous updating;
- b) The organization of the annual competition «Migliore enotecario d'Italia», which proclaims the best wine merchant in Italy for the Bottiglieria section and the best wine merchant in Italy for the Mescita section. The same competition also rewards the Best Winemaker of Italy UNDER30 with which we want to help young people to access the profession and the Best Winemaker of Italy Abroad, with which we want to reward those who have decided to go abroad. foreigner to become Enotecario;
- c) The organization and realization of 40-hour internships with which the Enotecari visit a wine production area, capturing its deepest aspects, such as culture, tradition, local wine history.

AEPI is included in the specific list of Associations that issue certification of quality and professional qualification of services provided by members to citizens, a list held by MISE, Ministry of Economic Development.

It also maintains relations with the Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Forestry and with the Ministry of Tourism.

Finally, the AEPI maintains cordial relations with all the Italian organizations in the wine sector and in particular with Vinarius (Association of Italian wine merchants - the physical points of sale, not the operators - for which there is AEPI, and with the two French associations FCI - Fédération des Cavistes Indépendants and SCP Syndicat des Cavistes Professionnels ainsi comme as well with SGVC Syndicat Général des Vignerons de la Champagne.

We cannot resist concluding with a statement by the President of the AEPI, Francesco BONFIO, after his participation as a judge during the 2021 edition of the Mondial des Vins Blancs Strasbourg:

"I was very honored to have represented the AEPI, as a member of commission no. 10, in this competition. I noticed an excellent organization, a very great professionalism on the part of all the collaborators and an excellent average level of the samples presented. As for the wines that stood out for their absolute quality, they were rightly rewarded with the highest distinctions.; and above all, the spirit of collegiality and the really friendly atmosphere on the part of the guests from many countries was surprising».

We would like to thank Francesco BONFIO for his valuable contribution to this ITALIA focus and look forward to welcoming him back to our panel of experts.
